

Camden Child, 9, Saved From Death After Lethal Shock

A nine-year-old Camden girl was snatched from the clutches of death early Friday afternoon after she was accidentally electrocuted at her home on Fair Street.

Lisa Holland, the only child of State Highway Commissioner and Mrs. Donald H. Holland, was rushed to the Kershaw County Memorial Hospital in a condition of death (she had stopped breathing and her heart had stopped beating) after she had received a lethal electric shock while sitting on a washing machine and dangling her feet into a sink at the Holland's home at approximately 2 p.m. Friday.

Dr. George West opened the child's chest and jumped the still heart with his hands for several moments, without success. The hospital's Heart Monitor Machine was then put into operation with Dr. Francis McCorkle operating the unit and with Dr. West, Dr. Sandra Catoe, and Dr. Jack Fakoury assisting.

After several minutes the heart began beating again, and as of this (Monday) morning Lisa's condition is somewhat improved, but she is still on the critical list. The Heart Monitor is being kept by her side in the event of another emergency.

Lisa and Becky Bowers had come into the Hollands' home after playing in the yard, and Lisa was washing her feet at the time of the accident. Becky was also shocked, but only slightly. Mr. Holland was at home at the time, and he rushed his daughter to the hospital, where, fortunately, Dr. West and the other physicians happened to still be attending patients.

The life-saving Heart Monitor Machine was a gift to the hospital from the hospital's auxiliary. The machine shocks the heart and regulates the pace of the beat and also prevents fluttering.

Merchants Warned Of 'Invoice'

A cleverly worded "invoice" bearing the return address of California advertising firm is being circulated to merchants and individuals in the Camden area, the Camden and Kershaw County Chamber of Commerce reports.

On first glance, the invoice appears to be a bill stating that the receiver should return a check to the California firm by June 30.

Upon close examination, which some may not make, the invoice is a pay-in-advance deal for listing in a classified advertising booklet which the firm claims will be published.

Wreck Here On Friday

An estimated $125 damages were reported in a Friday traffic accident about 4:50 p.m. at the intersection of Clyburn Lane and Broad St.

Police reports state the wreck happened when Wado Horace, 54, Newbert, S. C., driving a '62 Ford backed into the path of a '64 Ford driven by Helen Johnson Royall, 38, Camden. The Royall's Ford was hit in the left front door.

Reports said Mr. Horace was charged with improper backing. No injuries were reported.

Camden Police Sgt. Tommy Cobb investigated the accident.

$700 Stolen In Burglary Saturday

Dr Church

Enterprise.
"We as a church, a fellowship of Christian believers, have moved far in sinking roots into the soil of the community; and we stand now immediately before a new era of activities and prayerful achievements in the service of the Master. On this plot of ground we are gathered together to turn the first soil and thereby mark the formal initiation of our building program. From this day forward this will be holy and sacred land before the presence of
(Continued On Page 8)

are Bill D Monthly

shaw County Welfare office.
As a rising senior at the University of Florida this fall, Miss Brown will enter full time work following graduation. She began as a care aide worker on June 9 and will continue through mid-August. April statistics show South Carolina old-age assistance amounted to $1,269,856.71. Aid to families with dependent children

Two Youths